

NINETY-THIRD YEAR. POLICE CHIEF KIELY ACTED AS PEACEMAKER.

Meeting of National Association of Police Chiefs Nearly Ended in a Riot.

PLAIN TALK MISUNDERSTOOD.

Members Thought That Former Chief Devery of New York Was Being Slandered—Troubles Were Finally Adjusted.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, May 29.—Bedlam broke loose at to-day's session of the National Police Chiefs' Association at the Hotel Savoy, precipitated by the reading of a paper by Superintendent of Police DeLoach of Cincinnati, which some of the members present considered a reflection upon Deputy Commissioner Devery of New York.

For a few minutes it looked as though the police reserves would have to be called to put down an incipient riot. While the trouble was at its height, Chief of Police Kiely of St. Louis came to the aid of Superintendent DeLoach, and immediately the room was divided into two factions—the DeLoach-Kiely and the Devery adherents. The former won the day.

Chief Kiely. He took a leading part in the debate on social evil at the meeting of chiefs of police in New York City yesterday.

DeLoach Taken by Surprise. Chief Kiely of Philadelphia and President DeLoach of Cincinnati also protested against the interruption, and when a vote was taken it was almost unanimous in favor of Superintendent DeLoach. The latter, in the meantime, seemed to be overwhelmed with astonishment, and when a vote was taken it was almost unanimous in favor of Superintendent DeLoach.

Money Present for Devery. Chief Kiely of Philadelphia, who had been invited to give his views on social evil, was interrupted by a man who called himself "Devery." He then went on to give his views on social evil, and when a vote was taken it was almost unanimous in favor of Superintendent DeLoach.

Chief Kiely to the Rescue. Somebody seconded the motion and immediately the door was being closed by at least a score, each one of whom was shouting and protesting. For a time the room was a scene of confusion, and the police reserves were called to the aid of the police.

PROPOSED SITES FOR WORLD'S FAIR VISITED.

Executive Committee Inspects O'Fallon Park and Northwestern Sites and Will View the Others To-Day and To-Morrow—Problems of Water Supply and Drainage Are Discussed.

The Executive Committee of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company spent yesterday afternoon looking over two of the sites for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition—the O'Fallon Park and the Northwestern sites. The North St. Louis Citizens' Association met the committee at 2 o'clock at Third street and Washington avenue.

FOREST PARK TO BE VISITED TO-MORROW. To-morrow the committee will look over the Forest Park site. According to city officials special sewerage devices will have to be used if the southwest or the northwest site is chosen.

O'FALLON PARK'S POINTS ARE CONSIDERED. From The Lookout the committee obtained a bird's-eye view of the improvement of the site, which will have to be destroyed, if the site is located there, running to the river.

ADVANTAGES OF THE NORTHWESTERN SITE VIEWED. The advantages of the site called particular attention to the old Goodfellow home, at Goodfellow and Natural Bridge road, an ante-bellum stone structure, with wall 3 feet thick, which is said to occupy the spot where formerly stood the home of General William Clark.
